

Getting to know you: YOUR NAME

To establish a strong and productive working relationship, I'd like to learn more about your working styles and preferences. Please take some time over the next two weeks to respond to the following questions for us to use in our Getting to Know You conversation. At that time, I will also share some of my working preferences with you.

Values

All of us have personal values that deeply inform our leadership and professional practice. If you have previously considered and identified your values, please share them. I am interested in how these values influence you in your working life.

If you have not previously reflected on your values, you might wish to do so. Understanding and discussing values can be a helpful way to discover and articulate motivations, assumptions, and priorities. Here are a few online links to help you get started:
